Benidorm is Murder

Dennis and Rosa are an unlikely crime-fighting duo in Benidorm: he's a burned-out ex-cop hiding behind a failing Scottish pub, she's a hyper-active wannabe actress who talks her way into a job and into his life. Together they stumble into running investigations the local police are too stretched, or too wary, to handle. Each week, a new corner of the city turns deadly: a washed-up tribute band at an adults-only hotel, a bitter comic on the comeback trail, a cursed hen weekend, a feuding bingo queen, a poisonous day on Levante beach and more. As Dennis and Rosa juggle jealous lovers, feuding families, missing cash, sunburnt bigots, hen parties and eccentric tourists, they're also wrestling with their own baggage – his broken marriage and estranged child, her disappointed father and personal ambitions, and a mutual reluctance to admit they actually need each other. Watching, often exasperated, are sharp Spanish inspector Maria and puppy-ish young cop Jesús, who grudgingly learn to value the pair's scruffy instincts, even as they roll their eyes at their methods. But the more Dennis and Rosa dig into Benidorm's underbelly, the more Dennis's past starts to surface. When old enemy Stan Grainger walks into The Tavern and a secret lock-in ends in blood on the floor, Dennis finds himself framed for murder in his own pub, with only Rosa truly on his side. To survive, he and Rosa will have to decide how far they're willing to go for the truth, for the town that has accidentally become home – and for each other. The season ends with Dennis led away in cuffs.

Grand Hotel by the Sea

Grand Hotel by the Sea is a compelling period romantic drama set in 1912, where two families diametrically opposed yet deeply interconnected, navigate the tides of social change, sacrifice, and ambition, each bound by their desire to build a better tomorrow.

At the heart of this story is Sandra von Wiegmann, the captivating, daring, and often vulnerable owner of the Grand Hotel by the Sea. With a vision as grand as the name suggests, Sandra dreams of turning the seaside retreat into Europe's most coveted haven for the elite. But elevating her hotel to its peak glory is no easy feat. Bold decisions merge with personal challenges, as Sandra must confront the consequences of her ambition while striving to secure a future for her two sons.

Meanwhile, the Haasnoot sisters, Kathelijne, Willy, and Trijntje, face a harsh reality after losing their family's fishing boat. As Noordwijk transforms under the Grand Hotel's influence, they envision chances for reinvention, but their dreams come with sacrifices and societal pressures. Their mother, Claartje, stands as a sceptical voice of caution, clashing with her daughters' hopes for a new life.

Grand Hotel by the Sea is more than the story of an opulent seaside retreat; it's about the lives it transforms. Sandra's ambitious rise to power and the Haasnoot sisters' fight to redefine their destiny bring emotional depth and gripping drama. As Sandra strives to place the Grand Hotel among Europe's finest, and the Haasnoot women confront the sacrifices behind their dreams, one question remains: will ambition and resilience be enough to escape the pressures of an unforgiving era?

Ku'damm 77

From UFA Fiction, the producers of Generation War and Annette Hess, the acclaimed writer behind Weissensee and The Interpreter of Silence, Ku'damm is a tremendously successful period drama set in post-war Berlin. Centred on the formidable owner of a prestigious dance school and her family, the series charts their personal and political struggles as they navigate shifting cultural tides and fight to define their own identities. Spanning decades – from the buttoned-up 1950s to the vibrant 1970s – Ku'damm offers a rare, compelling lens on history and the evolving roles of women in a changing world.

Season 4 takes a dive into 70s Berlin: The Bee Gees are conquering discotheques with 'Stayin' Alive', and Europe is in the midst of the Cold War. The Berlin Wall stands impregnable. Headlines are dominated by RAF terrorism, drug deaths and young people's rebellion at peace and environmental demonstrations. The social discourse doesn't stop at the front door of the dance school, which now houses three generations of the Schöllack family: the sisters Monika and Helga, their nearly grown-up daughters Dorli and Friederike, as well as their mother, the ageless matriarch Caterina.

Life among the women is turbulent. Caterina claims she will no longer interfere in her family's life, though taking a step back is easier said than done. Helga seeks solace in alcohol. However, when Hannes, a dentist from Dahlem, enters her life, she dares to hope for a new romance. Her daughter Friederike harbours the impossible dream of becoming a police officer. Caterina's youngest daughter, Eva, returns from prison traumatised, turning the family dynamic upside down. Monika, meanwhile, is focusing on her daughter Dorli's career as a competitive dancer. However, when Dorli is unable to cope with the pressure, the symbiosis between mother and daughter begins to crumble. A catastrophe looms...

Wild, funny, existential and full of heart, Ku'damm illustrates that however fiercely women like the Schöllacks fight with each other, they fight for each other even harder.

Lume

Lucía, a Galician journalist in Lisbon, returns to her hometown of Seara to report on a devastating forest fire. But for her, it's personal.

Her father, Afonso, the 'Abaneiro', was accused of arson 30 years ago, and the fire killed a child. Lucía believes he was innocent and took his life in prison for a crime he didn't commit. Returning to Seara means confronting painful memories and a village that still sees her as the daughter of a criminal.

Met with hostility, she finds an ally in Júlio, a discreet Portuguese National Republican Guard corporal. As their attraction grows, he helps her investigate. With Agent Salgueiro, she reveals a cover-up: the fire's cause is being concealed, and its pattern matches the one pinned on her father.

Determined to expose the truth, Lucía follows a trail that leads to a shell company acquiring burned land for a wind farm – as was the case 30 years ago. With help from Ana, a Galician intern at a small newspaper, and Xan, a teenage hacker, she begins to unravel a web of corruption. The scheme involves politicians and businessmen who have shaped the region's fate for decades, including high-ranking Portuguese official Armando Sá Silva and Seara's mayor, Iolanda.

Meanwhile, the police investigate the suspicious death of Martim, a botanist whose research may hold the key to the mystery. As Lucía gets closer to the truth, she realises that the same powerful forces that framed her father are still at work – and they will do whatever it takes to keep their secrets buried.

The King of Šumava

The King of Šumava is an enthralling adaptation of David Jan Žák's acclaimed novel The Return of the Šumava King. Set against the backdrop of post-war Czechoslovakia in the spring of 1948, the story follows the gripping journey of Josef Hasil, a 24-year-old cook in the National Security Corps. Having survived the war in a German labour camp and fought alongside partisans, Hasil has no interest in politics. However, as the Iron Curtain descends, the rapidly closing borders and looming fears of World War III thrust him into the perilous world of smuggling. Hasil's unparalleled knowledge of the Šumava mountains enables him to navigate the treacherous path from East to West, making him an invaluable asset to those seeking freedom. The series meticulously recreates this tense period, drawing from Hasil's personal memories, eyewitness testimonies, and archival documents, bringing a true story of resilience and courage to life.

White Night | S02

A dramatic, gripping family saga, concurrent storylines run past and present as White Night Season two takes us back to the 80s. No longer satisfied with her modelling career, Louise Hébert-Lacombe's (Rose-Marie Perreault) dreams of setting up a cosmetics company with her friend and former neighbour Jacinthe. Thanks in part to mentor Aidrian, Nocturne was born, developing into a powerhouse cosmetic industry empire. In her relentless pursuit of opulence, fame, and power, Louise must face major adverse events, maturing into present-day Loulou (France Castel). Meanwhile, Aidrian, obsessed with protecting and further propelling Loulou's success, lets himself be dominated more and more by his dark side. Murdered on the eve of the launch of her new fragrance, the Hébert clan embarks on a pursuit to find LouLou's killer. Though seemingly solved, it appears that Clémence killed Loulou. What Aidrian and the Hébert children don't know, but soon realise, is that Clémence did not act alone but had an accomplice. Familial bonds fray in their pursuit of this other culprit, with the Hébert clan beginning to tear each other apart. Revelations highlight cracks in each of the characters, generating suspicion, betrayal and shameful secrets that severely test family loyalty and lay a web of self-destruction. Thrown into situations that force them to cross boundaries, their decisions could have serious consequences that may forever undermine the ties that bind them. Will the clan survive the ordeal?

Agnes

Born into royalty, Princess Agnes of Bohemia, daughter of the Czech king, begins her life in a convent surrounded by faith and the kindness of Queen Hedwig. Betrothed at age four to the Polish crown prince, her world shatters when her fiancé dies, pulling her from her peaceful life into the turbulent world of political ambition. Forced into a new engagement to Heinrich Staufer, son of the Roman emperor, Agnes discovers a harsh reality filled with courtly intrigue and betrayal. When disaster strikes and her engagement to Heinrich crumbles, Agnes returns to Prague in disgrace, only to face another forced betrothal – this time to the King of England. Treated as a mere bargaining chip, she begins to reject obedience, finding inspiration in the radical ideas of Francis of Assisi.

Determined to take control of her life, Agnes breaks free from royal expectations and builds her own Franciscan convent and hospital, dedicating herself to healing and helping others. Her independence and defiance of authority draw loyal allies, like confessor Konrad, and bitter enemies, including the vengeful inquisitor Marburg. Her love for Emperor Friedrich complicates her choices, but Agnes refuses to compromise her calling. As internal family betrayals and war threaten her dynasty, Agnes sacrifices everything to secure peace.

Her miraculous deeds in her final days turn her into a legend and a symbol of strength, faith, and hope that endures far beyond her time.

Bust Up

Bust Up is a six-part buddy cop crime series set in the wild and beautiful North Island of New Zealand. At the heart of the series are ex-lovers Mihi and Deb who, unexpectedly, after ten years apart, are thrown together as reluctant cop partners in the small town of Waitote. Mihi, now married (to a man), has returned home. Deb has made this her patch for the last eight years and hasn't seen Mihi in all that time, but the truth she is forced to face is that she's never really got over her. Neither of them expected to have to work together but despite the initial tension, it turns out they're a great team.

The long working hours demand trust and instinct, especially under fire. That's a lot of time in a car denying they still care about each other, and trying not to remember how good they used to be together. Each episode resolves a local crime, while a slow-burning mystery simmers beneath the surface until the final episode.

The episodic crimes range from a shark-masked bank robber with asthma, to two children left alone while their mum runs meth, to a bride's 'hen' party gone feral, and a terminally ill man with murder on his bucket list. All while something weightier builds in the background throughout the series.

In the final episode Deb is taken hostage by a wannabe gang prospect. Mihi tracks her to the home of the drug queenpin. They solve the case, make sense of all those pesky gnomes the town is full of – and finally confront the feelings they've been trying to bury. They still love each other. That's clear. What they'll do about it is the enticing question for Season 2.

Crystal Wall

Full of passion and intrigue, Crystal Wall from ZDFneo is a series that follows a bodyguard ruthlessly protecting her client. But when their tension-filled relationship begins to cross professional boundaries and social barriers, someone is bound to get hurt.

On a dark city street, MMA fighter Louna drags billionaire heir Nico Dardenne out of the burning remains of his car, saving his life at the risk of her own. After this intense encounter, Louna decides to apply for a role as his bodyguard, facing strong competition. Though Nico's associates are sceptical about Louna's qualifications for the role, Nico is impressed by Louna and gives her the job.

But as she begins her new role as Nico's bodyguard, she starts to realise that she's bitten off more than she can chew. Being a constant fly on the wall to everything in Nico's life is not easy, joining him on dates and at family gatherings, especially as her feelings towards him start to develop. To complicate things further, her time around the prestigious Dardenne family draws Louna into their dark secrets and a deadly conspiracy that puts her loyalty to Nico on the line.

Though love draws them together, class pushes them apart, and the crystal wall that divides them seems insurmountable. Do Louna and Nico have a chance at love or are the harsh realities of wealth, status and dangerous family truths too much for their relationship to survive?

Fairy Tale Cinema

Fairy tale cinema – the tradition of fairy tale film reinterpreted. Transposed into the present in a contemporary and imaginative way, the films in this series celebrate the fairy tale as a narrative form for all generations. Magical stories are centre stage. This is storytelling devoid of hocus pocus, instead highlighting traditional tales, strong emotions, and genuine heroes and heroines. Wonderful fictional entertainment for fairy tale fans – and all those who want to become one.

Fairy tale cinema gives classic Brothers Grimm tales a modern makeover without losing any of their romantic charm.

Mrs. Holle's Garden also comes from the legendary Brothers Grimm, but "Frau Holle" is a legend in her own right in Germany. It's only fitting that she's played by the immensely popular German idol of the 50s/60s in the ZDF film adaptation: Cornelia Froboess.

In the latest film, The Star Money of Happiness, Katja Sterner is faced with ruin. She left her job as a restorer to care for her parents a few years ago. Now they have both passed away, and Katja wants to go back to work. But there are simply no job openings for her. Just as she is about to leave the city in search of work elsewhere, her lucky coin happens to turn up again. Katja takes this as a sign and sets off for Herzfeldt, the place where her father had originally found the coin bearing a star. She gets hired to restore the old dilapidated pavilion which people call the "Lovers' Dacha". The first kiss, a secret rendezvous, pledges of love all happened in that pavilion for many years. Will it work its magic on Katja?

Doctor Ballouz

Doctor Ballouz is based on topics from the non-fiction book “Deutschland draußen” (literally translated, Germany outside). The Lebanese-born Ballouz fled his war-torn country and studied medicine in the GDR. After years in London and Paris, he returned to Germany and a small clinic in Brandenburg. The journalist Jasper Fabian Wenzel accompanied the doctor in his daily life for six months.

Armin Ballouz is the kind of country doctor we all wish for but who has become such a rarity. The series Doctor Ballouz pays homage to this medical hero.

Together with his team, Ballouz provides the residents of the economically underdeveloped Ueckermark district with exceptional care and attention, and not just in the medical sense. He is always willing to listen to his patients' problems. They trust him with their stories of love, life, loneliness and hope, and Ballouz becomes a part of their lives.

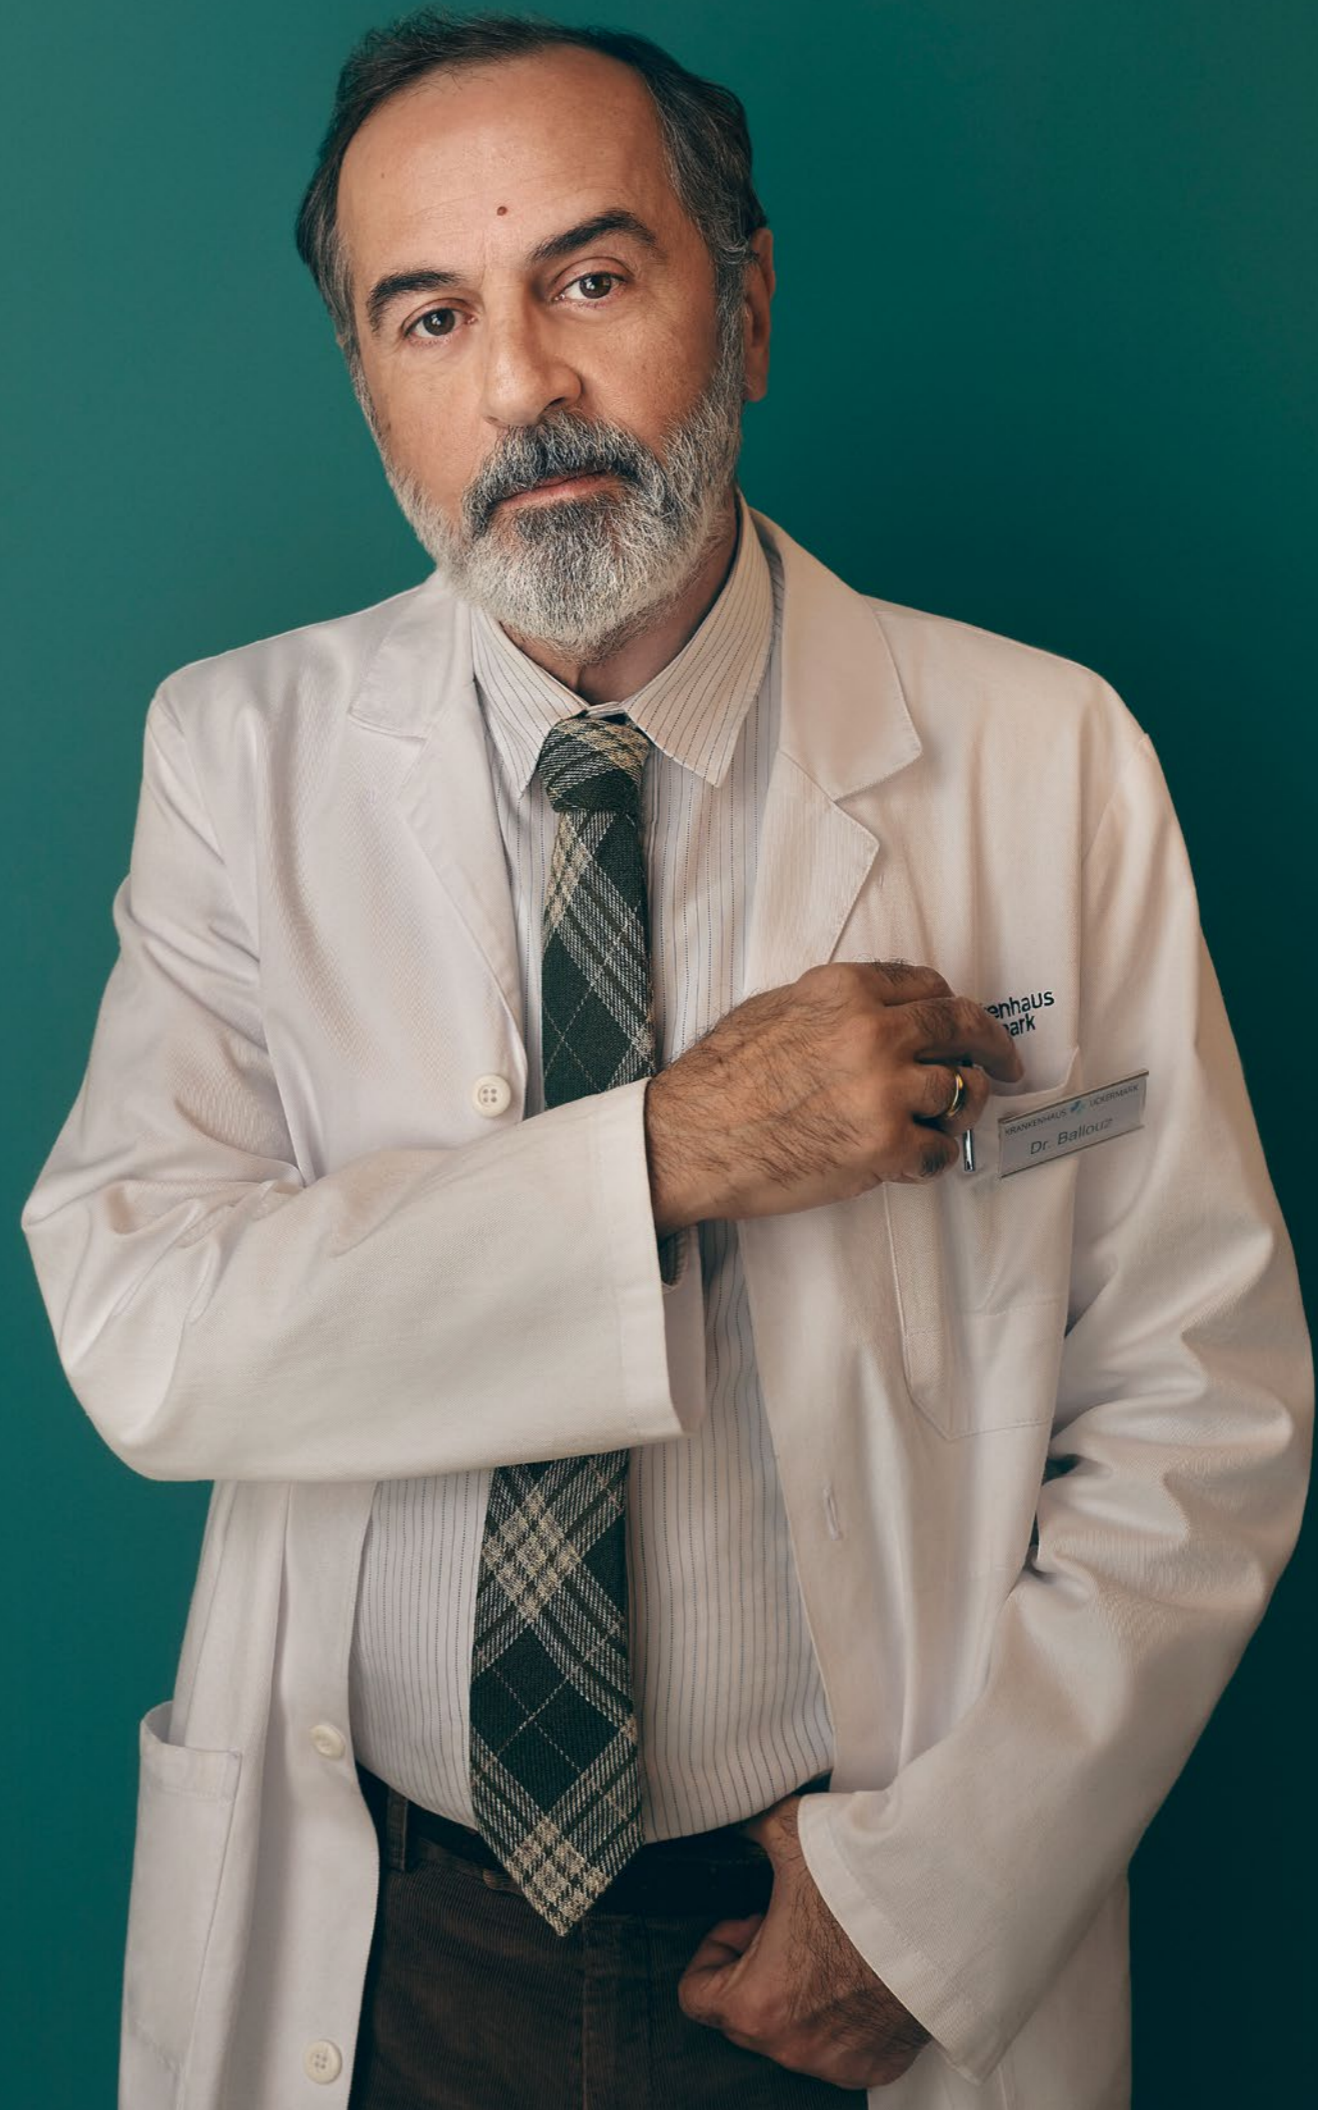

The eccentric doctor with a big heart, who wears his signature trench coat and drives a Trabi, is passionate about his work and doesn't shy away from trying unconventional methods – whatever is necessary to help his patients. The sudden loss of his wife, the love of his life, hits Ballouz hard. The community he has always supported now slowly helps him get back on his feet.

Alongside Ballouz's private struggles, the modern medical drama series mirrors current social and regional issues.

SEASON 4 COMING SOON

Herz and Holly will see you now

Young emergency doctor Holly Sass has travelled from her home in Berlin to the picturesque town of Tangermünde in the search for her biological mother whose last known whereabouts were in the town, 32 years ago. Her path crosses with the village doctor, Dr. Katrin Herz, who's open-hearted nature has her patients queuing at the door to receive her much-sought-after diagnoses.

The two doctors strike a deal – Holly will help out at the practice to unburden Katrin. In return, Katrin will let her search for clues about her estranged mother in the practice archives and will put her in contact with the previous practice owner, Dr. Wernitz.

As Holly confidently starts her first consultation, she is met with outrage when she refuses to prescribe a patient a questionable medication. Beginning to question her decision to stay in Tangermünde, Holly confides in her new landlord, the carefree boat builder Gregor Seefried. While she learns more about Gregor, she finds that his seemingly laid-back life is not as it seems.

One patient in particular that has both doctors puzzled is a young mother named Dana. Suffering from extreme mood swings and memory lapses, the young woman has Holly concerned for her well-being when she finds Dana's baby abandoned in the countryside.

While Katrin thinks it's likely that the drug abuse in Dana's past is to blame and tries to support Dana through her mother, Holly's gut feeling is to take action. She reports the incident to the police, and, as a result, Dana no longer allows Holly to examine her. Could Holly's own personal history be clouding her judgement?

Womaniser, bachelor and jet-setter – ‘Dr. Nice’ is no ordinary doctor. Navigating life with confidence verging on arrogance, Dr. Moritz Neiss, a handsome and successful star surgeon knows exactly how good he really is and doesn’t shy away from undermining other doctors or speaking the honest truth, even when it hurts. In the first season of this one-of-a-kind film series however, things in Moritz’s life don’t go quite to plan.

Moritz has recently been dealt some shocking news – he fathered a daughter named Lea during a one-night stand 16 years ago. To make things more complicated, the girl’s mother has recently passed away and Moritz has been asked to attend the woman’s will reading in Flensburg where he meets Charlie, the step mother of Lea. Moritz immediately puts his foot in it with Charlie and their interaction is anything but friendly. But when Charlie states her wish to legally adopt Lea, Moritz is totally on board. That is until the executor of the will tells the pair that it will take some days until the paperwork can be signed, forcing Moritz to stay in the local village where he finally meets his daughter and the two begin to bond.

Dr. Moritz Neiss starts to offend the Flensburg villagers with his egocentric nature. But his undeniable skills as a doctor have them desperate for him to take up the role of the local doctor. Taking the job would mean letting go of his go-getter lifestyle and being closer to his daughter. With a history of holding people at arm’s length, is this a chance for Moritz to finally start letting people in?

Reef Doctors

A dedicated medical team stationed on a stunning yet perilous island within Australia's Great Barrier Reef faces challenges found nowhere else on Earth. From snakebites and jellyfish stings to tropical diseases and diving accidents, no two days are ever the same. Whether they're climbing cliffs, diving into treacherous waters or tracking deadly wildlife, this team will stop at nothing to keep islanders and tourists safe.

As the only medical facility on the reef, they're constantly pushed to their limits. At the helm is passionate venomologist Dr. Sam Stewart, whose team of experts handles everything from treating the bends to searching for rare venom antidotes.

Fast-paced and full of heart, this series blends edge-of-your-seat adventure with emotional depth, complex relationships and a dash of quirky humour.

Alpine Rescue

Alpine Rescue is a high-stakes adventure series set in the unforgiving terrain of the Austrian Alps, where danger hides behind every snow-covered peak and rocky gorge. At its core is an elite mountain rescue team – doctors, climbers, and medics – who risk their lives daily to save others. Whether airlifting a stranded hiker, navigating collapsing caves, or braving avalanches, their mission is clear: no one gets left behind.

More than a rescue show, Alpine Rescue explores the human drama behind each operation. The team often clashes over methods and emotions, but their bond is forged in crisis, and they are united by courage and the will to pro-*tec*t. Amid breathtaking scenery and exhilarating action, the series captures the raw power of nature and the resilience of those who face it head-on.

In a special guest appearance, supermodel and TV icon Heidi Klum features as event manager Isabell Klett, who is caught in a dramatic mountain accident. Her glamorous style adds another layer to one of the series' most emotional and action-packed episodes: Brotherly Love.

Alpine Rescue combines suspense, human drama, and the raw power of nature into a must-watch series that keeps viewers on the edge of their seats.

The Puzzle Lady

When a strange murder takes place in the sleepy market town of Bakerbury, the local police are baffled by a crossword puzzle clue left on the body. Fortunately, the famous cruciverbalist Cora Felton, known as The Puzzle Lady, has just moved to town with her long-suffering niece, Sherry Carter. Behind the cosy façade of a demure older lady – an image that markets her best-selling crossword column and a popular brand of biscuits – is a chain-smoking, wisecracking, borderline alcoholic. Not only is the persona of eccentric old Cora a lie, she isn't the puzzle expert, she's actually a fraudulent frontwoman for Sherry, the real puzzle expert, whose brilliant crossword puzzles have become a national sensation. Despite her lack of expertise, Cora cannot help but turn enthusiastically to amateur sleuthing, much to the chagrin of Detective Chief Inspector Hooper who wishes he'd never involved her in the first place!

Hooper holds the most senior rank in a woe-fully understaffed local police station. He's a perfectly competent DCI, but has had very little experience with serious crime, particularly murder – until now. He moans when Cora sticks her nose in his cases, but forgives her because she always saves the day in the end. Not only does Cora crack this murder case, she discovers a knack for solving murders, and as it turns out, Bakerbury isn't as sleepy as it looks.

High Season

A young couple, Misha and Anya, are on vacation in Vietnam. The penultimate day of their stay, as they prepare to leave, Anya disappears under mysterious circumstances. Local police dismiss Misha's pleas, forcing him to search alone. At the same time, Tao, a disciplined military officer, arrives in Nha Trang to investigate her sister's death from a new drug called Jellycat. Their paths cross in the city's criminal underworld, and together they uncover that Anya's disappearance is tied to her hidden past with a Thailand gang led by her ex, Sugar. Drawn back into the crew's chaotic world of debts, drugs, and violent deals, Anya is torn between her old and new life. As Misha and Tao chase leads through nightclubs, hideouts, and back roads, they are pulled deeper into a cross-border pipeline of crime stretching from Saigon to the Mekong. Sugar and his gang fall under Triad control, forced into impossible jobs while paranoia grows over a traitor among them. Misha is caught, nearly executed, and saved only by shifting allegiances. Anya, imprisoned and offered freedom at a brutal cost, fights her way back into the search. Together with Tao, she and Misha navigate betrayals, ambushes, and raids as shifting alliances fracture the crew. When escapes collapse and violence escalates, every choice carries deadly consequences. By the time the final ambush strikes, leaving some of their friends dead, broken trust, and uncertain futures, Misha, Anya, and Sugar are bound together – lucky survivors in a harsh world they build for themselves.

Detective von Fock

Estonia, 1820s. The Baltic German nobility has largely retained its autonomy within the Russian Empire. Some of the estates are wealthier than small German principalities. Many struggle – luxuries and lavish lifestyles, drinking and gambling put a strain on the family budgets. Younger brothers are often left empty-handed, joining the Russian army or learning a trade to earn an income. And among the ethnic Estonians, national awakening is stirring.

Paul von Fock, the youngest of three brothers, has recently inherited the prosperous Sagadi manor – much to the surprise of his social circle, of which he is not the most popular member, and the middle son Ferdinand, whose vanity could use a higher income.

When Paul is elected the assessor of the local court by the Knighthood, he doesn't expect to solve anything beyond pub brawls and petty disputes between neighbours. But when the murder of his childhood bully, notorious swindler

Justus von Brevern, becomes his first case, the extent of his responsibility suddenly dawns on him. Paul enlists the help of Gerhard Wagner, his university friend and governor, who starts off as a rather unwilling, but eventually useful sidekick, and must resign himself to the help of Maria von Nottbeck, his childhood friend and notorious femme fatale, who will accept any entertainment she can find in this periphery of Europe after returning from her adventures abroad.

These two are clearly meant for each other, but whatever mess Maria has got herself into during her travels is still haunting her, and figuring her out proves the toughest case Paul will face.

Dahlmann's Last Supper

Business tycoon Alfons Dahlmann invites his three adult children and their partners to spend Christmas at his secluded mountain hunting lodge. To everyone's surprise, his biggest business rival, Leonard Windemeyer, is also on the guest list. Alfons announces he'll retire at the end of the year and name his successor the next day. But that day never comes: the next morning, Alfons is found dead in his study.

Shock ripples through the family. Was it a break-in, or is the killer one of them? As accusations begin to fly, police officers Greta and Oliver take on the case, quickly realising that each guest is hiding something. When a missing briefcase reappears, it reveals Alfons' final move: he sold the company to Windemeyer. As the family turns on each other, one thing is clear – solving this mystery is not going to be easy.

The Markovič Method

Set during the normalisation era of Czechoslovakia, this new six-part mini-series entitled The Markovič Method: Hojer tells the story of the apprehension and conviction of one of the most terrifying serial killers of the time, Ladislav Hojer, by the legendary detective Jiří Markovič.

At the turn of the 1980s, Prague is a very hostile place, drab and run-down. Muted crowds form orderly lines in front of half-empty stores whilst vibrant posters plastered on the walls of battered houses commemorate an infamous anniversary. It's in this bleak, grey setting where a chilling new phenomenon emerges in the streets at night – young sexual assailants with sadistic tendencies. It was precisely these individuals that Jiří Markovič relentlessly pursued throughout his extensive career. The series not only delves into the investigation and apprehension of Ladislav Hojer and his unique connection with his investigator but also weaves closed cases from various points in Markovič's career into every episode. These cases held paramount importance in his journey as an elite investigator, illustrating how his method evolved during this specific period that made him so distinctive. Thus, the legend of Markovič was born.

Love Sucks

Set against the backdrop of blood lust and the neon lights of a fairground, a murderous family feud stands in the way of true love.

Trained as a boxer by her father, tough Zelda fights in the family boxing ring against fairground visitors who dare to take her on. One night as she strolls through the crowds at the fair, she locks eyes with a stranger – Ben. Ben is sensitive, sophisticated and nothing like his brother, the dark and devious Theo. As the brothers enter the boxing tent, Theo convinces Ben to fight. As he stands in the ring, Ben sees Zelda for the second time that night – she is his opponent. They fight each other tooth and nail until he blacks out on the floor.

Later, having overheard that the brothers are having a party at their family home, Zelda stands before the door of a large gothic mansion. Inside, the lights are flashing, the beat of the music is intense and through the haze of the smoke, she can see young bodies writhing and grinding. She finds Ben and as they dance, their lips almost meet until all hell breaks loose. Through the flashing of lights, she sees pointed teeth and bitten necks – vampires!

Zelda escapes and makes it home, clothes soaked in blood and in total shock. When her father and brother find out what happened, they reveal the truth to her – Zelda's family are vampire slayers, and they need to kill Ben's family before it's too late. While the tension between the two families grows, Ben and Zelda continue to meet in secret and begin to fall in love. But does their love stand a chance against the brutal feud of their families?

Quartet

You'll never meet a team quite like The Quartet, four incredible inspectors who always work as equals, unified to fight crime in the city of Leipzig. The founder of the team, Maike Riem, is driven by her great sense of justice and truth. Working beside her is loyal family man Christoph Hofherr, who sees his colleagues as a second family. There to push forensic science to its limits is Linus Roth, the team boffin who will always find a way to apply science and technology in his search for the truth. Tough and unyielding, the fourth member of the team is Pia Walther who always has her hackles up and can be ruthless when the situation calls for it.

In the latest episode, a disturbed young woman named Julia is cradling her dead twin sister Anna in her arms on a suburban train station in Leipzig. Though a crucial witness in the case, Julia is completely traumatised and silent, unable to tell them the events that led to her sister's death. But Linus is determined to get a statement from her and begins trying to gain her trust. Meanwhile, the team discovers that the sisters belong to a cult-like community lead by the ominous guru Raphael Wegner. As Maike begins to dig deeper, she is only met with a wall of fear and mistrust.

It soon becomes clear that to solve this almost impossible case, Maike Riem and her team will have to go into the lion's den – the strange community, which lives far away from society, isolated in the Leipzig suburbs. When they come face to face with the charismatic yet manipulative cult leader, it's not just Julia's life that's in danger.

The Inspector and the Lake

Having returned to his home town by the tranquil waters of Lake Constance, retired Inspector Robert Anders just wants a quiet life. But leaving his past as a detective behind is easier said than done. When murders are committed, Robert just can't help but investigate. In the third film of this heart-stopping series, Robert is pulled back to the place that shaped him: his old boarding school.

The body of a young woman, Lena Nowak, is discovered on the lakeshore. Bright and ambitious, Lena had just begun her first job at a prestigious biotechnology firm in Constance. Initially, her death appears to be a tragic accident. But the very next day, her supervisor, Nobel Prize-winning biotech pioneer Bernd Eschenbach, is found dead in the lake, hands and feet bound. Suddenly, Lena's death is cast in a much darker light.

Commissioner Annika Wagner and her team take up the case, but it's Robert who becomes personally entangled. Eschenbach was not just a local celebrity – he was Robert's old school friend. Just days before his death, he had asked Robert to step in as a guest lecturer at their former boarding school, Bad Schachen.

At the school, Robert meets Eschenbach's grieving son, Moritz, and his enigmatic girlfriend, Yoko. Both are clearly hiding something. As Robert launches his own quiet investigation, long-buried memories resurface. He begins to uncover unsettling truths about Eschenbach, a man who, behind his accolades, was a manipulator who used people and discarded them.

Many had reason to want to end the "Eschenbach system". But only one of them turned motive into murder.

A Hometown Reporter's Reboot

Journalist Beke Rieper's lucrative career was soaring with the biggest names in journalism on her resume until a huge error of judgement left her reputation in tatters. After relying on an untrustworthy source, Beke becomes blacklisted. Only one paper still wants her – the local newspaper in her hometown.

Deciding to take the job as a temporary step while figuring out her next move, Beke moves back in with her parents. But living with them turns out to be a complicated arrangement. To make matters worse, sparks fly again between her and her childhood sweetheart, Paul, the now ex-husband of her best friend Elif.

44 Striving to balance her personal life with her professional ambitions, Beke takes on her first assignment at the local newspaper, reporting on a minor car accident on the A26 in which a woman's car crashed into the barrier due to terrible road conditions. The road happens to be Germany's shortest motorway, but as Beke digs a little deeper, she discovers the scandals and lawsuits delaying the construction of the road. The plaintiff of the lawsuits is Henning Beckmann, a reclusive old man whose house obstructs the motorway's completion. Beke's instinct tells her that there is more to the story and she soon uncovers Henning's tragic past.

Reporting on the town's many scandals is not the only thing keeping her busy as her parents expect her to work in their farm shop and Beke's daughter arrives in town with important news. But there's one more person on Beke's mind – Paul. Will her former lover be a welcome distraction or yet another complication?

Deadlines

Are there deadlines for children, careers and capitalism? In this comedy series, four life-long friends confront the societal expectations of women their age after years of care-free – and not always innocent – fun.

Elif, Lena, Jo and Franzi grew up together in Frankfurt. Their friendship is about more than just their shared hobbies or experiences at the school they all attended: they spent the toughest years at each other's sides growing up together. They know the most intimate details about each other: when and with whom they lost their virginity and who had the worst acne. Now, with their forties fast approaching, are these chaotic women finally ready to settle down? Or will they keep pushing boundaries, one misadventure at a time?

In Season 3 of Deadlines, Jo, Elif, Lena and Franzi return, tackling the whirlwind of life's latest curveballs – from ADHD diagnoses to co-parenting struggles and unexpected romances. Lena fights to keep custody of foster child Talisa, while Elif juggles business, a love affair and a high-stakes gamble at the gym. Jo despairs over her soul-crushing spa hotel job but finds solace in therapy, while Franzi wrestles with motherhood, clashes with her co-parent and embarks on a journey of self-discovery – one that leads to a surprising dive into bondage.

As relationships unravel and secrets surface, the friends brace themselves for Elif's milestone 40th birthday. But when the celebration takes an unexpected turn, one thing remains certain: through chaos, heartbreak and hilarity, their friendship is the one deadline they'll never miss.

Duplex

Unapologetically bizarre, undoubtedly hilarious and totally addictive, Duplex is a sitcom in a category all of its own. In a semi-detached house in the heart of Berlin's suburbia live two families whose opposite worldviews have them at constant war with each other.

In the house on the right live city slickers Mari and Theo Knuppe and their teen daughter Zoe. They moved to the countryside in a bid to find some peace and quiet. But their neighbours have other ideas. In the house on the left with the German flag flying with pride live Andi and Tracy Sawadi-Kröger and their teen son Rocco. Mari and Theo have a migration background, yet so does Tracy. Her husband however could be described as conservative and considers his neighbours to be “quite nice for foreigners”.

In the newest season of Duplex, both families long for a harmonious coexistence as the Knupes bring home their brand new baby girl. Each episode however brings with it a totally original point of contention, whether it be a local golf tournament with €10,000 prize money up for grabs; an insect infestation that drives the Sawadi-Krögers out of their home; or a game night hosted by the Knupes that takes an unexpected turn. This season even manages to take a step into the metaverse as both families attend Mari's brother Brian's exhibition in virtual reality. No matter how life throws these two families together, rest assured they'll find a way to misunderstand, offend or even almost kill each other. Expect turbulence, political incorrectness and a lot of awkward interactions in this sitcom from Stickup Film.
